Yet nevertheless, His Majesty being most willing to give all due incouragement unto the Trade of Fishing, and that whatsoever Salt shall be imployed and expended in order to the said Trade, and upon the curing of Fishes to be exported, shall in effect be free of Excise, and upon, and after mature and exact consideration of the quantity of Salt necessary and sufficient for each Last of Herring and white-fish of any kind, and of each Last of Salmond

And likewise the Masters of every Hall-part shall be obliged to give an account to the Collectors of the said Excise of the Malt appertaining to them in any manner of way, and what they have sold of the same, and to inform, that the same duty hath duly entered in the Excise Office, and that the Excise duty of the same duty hath been payed, whereupon, and that they have sold no more then what duty hereby entered, they are obliged to make faith if they be required. It is always provided, that where Excise Offices are in the Town or place where the Malt is made, the Malt-makers, their Orders or Factors, that be bound to repair to the Excise Office, to the said Justices, if they be required, but if there be no Excise Office in those places, the Collectors or Farmers of Excise or their Deputies are appointed to convene them at the respective Malt Offices, or Malt Barns where the Malt is made, and the same persons shall not be obliged to go any further. And in like manner, His Majesty considering, that divers questions and differences may arise, about the true Creation of several Gifts and Privileges made and granted to the Factors of Manufactures, for exemption and freedom from the Excise and Customs of certain Goods, which are the Materials of the said Manufactures. Be it therefore, by the said Statute, Enacted, That those new Manufactories shall have the benefit thereof, excepting such as shall be, or have been sufficiently created since the first day of January, one thousand six hundred sixty one years, and shall be found by the Lords of His Majesties Exchequer to have been, or to be created conform to the Acts of Parliament, and to have the qualifications required by the same. And further, His Majesty understanding that if after so large expressions of His Majesties Royal care and tenderness for the advancement of Trade and ease of Merchants, any shall be so unfaithfull as to presume to conceal & abstract the Goods imported by them, thereby evading the payment of Custom and Excise due and payable to His Majesty: not only His Majesty will be prejudged of His Custom and Excise, but also the Trade of Merchandise will be much endamaged by the unfair dealing of Merchants, their underselling of others, who do honestly make true entries of their Goods, and pay the duties of Custom and Excise. Wherefore for preventing the said prejudice and evill, His Majesty, with consent foresaid, gives power and warrant to the Collectors of Customs and Excise, or to their Deputs, to call and summond such persons who shall wittingly and wickedly conceal and abstract their Goods, or any part thereof, and not duely enter the same, or make false or deceitfull entries thereof, or any ways aiding and assisting to the concealing or abstracting thereof; and that before the Lords of His Majesties Exchequer, if the said persons within the bounds within limits of the place where the facts happen to be, for the time

And that the Collectors of his Majesties Customs and Excise and their Deputes, at the making their entry of their Intromission with the Customs and Excise books, shall be holden and obliged to make their oaths upon the truth of what is to be given in by them.
